Processing of personal data

Dubois Advocaten processes your personal data as part of the mission that was concluded with you (advice, assistance in the context of a legal procedure, etc.) and in accordance with the legal and deontological obligations we have as attorneys, like the anti-money laundering legislation (see specific page on this web site). In particular, it concerns following data: (i) first name and surname, (ii) date of birth, (iii) place of birth, (iv) gender, (v) contact information (domicile or registered office/establishment unit), (vi) phone and/or fax number, (vii) email address, (viii) website, (ix) bank account number (IBAN/BIC) and information about your banking institution(s) and (x) any other financial data. These data are processed by Mr Dubois himself or by one of the members of his staff or any other attorney working within Dubois Advocaten. There is no question of an automatic processing of your personal data.

The processed personal data will not be sold to any third party. They are only shared with third parties if this is strictly necessary for the mission concluded with the client and in accordance with the legal and deontological obligations we have as attorneys.

Processing of special and sensible personal data

Depending on the nature of the file and only if required so by the mission concluded with the client, Dubois Advocaten can process following special and sensible personal data: (i) legal information (cf. criminal record, previous criminal records), (ii) information about a membership to a trade union, (iii) information about a membership to a political party or association and (iv) data information of minors.

Conservation period

The data processed by Dubois Advocaten in the context of the mission concluded with the client and in accordance with the legal and deontological obligations we have as attorneys, will be conserved during the legal period of 5 years counting from the date of the termination of the collaboration and this for the purpose of archiving and eventual future liability claims. The personal data are not conserved longer than strictly necessary. After expiry of the abovementioned period of 5 years, these data will be destroyed.

Cookie policy

The website www.dubois-advcoaten.be uses cookies managed in our own name (own party cookies) as well as cookies managed or placed by third parties (third party cookies). As for this cookie policy, Dubois Advocaten will inform you about the use and the purpose of these cookies.

As administrator of this website, Dubois Advocaten makes use of so-called 'cookies'. Cookies are small data or text files that are installed on the computer or mobile device when visiting a website or when using a (mobile) application, conserving in this way certain user information. Cookie files contain unique codes allowing for example that your browser recognises you during your visiting, optimising in this way your user experience.

Cookies have an expiry period depending on the type of cookies (session cookies of permanent cookies). Session cookies contain information used during your current browser session. These cookies are automatically deleted when closing your browser. Permanent cookies are used to keep records of information in between different visits of the website. These data allow the website to recognise you as a repeat visitor and to react accordingly, remembering for example your language preferences. These permanent cookies have a longer service life, determined by the website.

Since cookies are also personal data, this cookie policy has to be seen in connection with our privacy policy that can also be consulted on our website. The processing of personal data is subject to the European regulation 2016/679 of the European Parliament and the Council of 27 of April 2016 on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data and concerning the free movement of those data, as well to the law of 30 July 2018 concerning the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data.

There are different kinds of cookies distinguished according to their functionality, their origin and/or their storage period.

Dubois Advocaten uses mainly functional (essential) cookies for the optimal functioning of the website and are technically required for the proper functioning and the protection of the website. This will improve the user experience of the visitors. These cookies are placed without permission as they are part of the legitimate interest of Dubois Advocaten.

Dubois Advocaten also reserves the right to use non-functional cookies that can be placed for statistical or commercial purposes. Dubois Advocaten uses cookies for analytical purposes to measure the visit of the website. These cookies indicate how the website is being used. It tells us how many times a certain page is read, how much time a visitor spends on our website, etc. Statistical analyses are made of the information we receive in this way. Thanks to these statistical results, we can enhance the structure, the navigation and the content of our website and related services. We also use these data to report in a general manner about our services or in the context of research. Personal data are never transferred. The acceptance of every visitor is required for the placement of these cookies.

Disabling certain cookies may imply that certain parts of the website do not function optimally, and that certain functionalities and services can't be used.
